How To Play Bridge

There are only three ways of winning a trick: playing a high card; leading a

"skater" trumping (also called ruffing) There are also plays that don't win tricks immediately, but that do increase your chances of winning future tricks. The techniques for winning tricks are basic to all aspects of playing bridge.
You must get more than "pretty good" at them.

Bridge is a 4-player card game played in teams of 2 where bidding is essential for maximizing your score. A bid is when you state out loud to the rest of the players how many “tricks” (or hands) your team will win. There is some strategy involved in bidding, but you can learn how to make successful bids by following some basic rules. Method 1

Use a squeeze to gain a single extra trick when a single defender is the sole guard for two suits. A squeeze involves two or more menaces with one being a two card menace header by a winner which is the link between the two hands. A positional squeeze can have both menaces in the hand over the defender, otherwise the menaces need to be
